

Marketing & Business Growth Proposal

Prepared for: Sharon | [Life Insurance Business Name]

Prepared by: [Agency Name] | [Your Name], Raphael & Miguel

Proposed engagement: 90-day growth pilot

Our proposal

Sharon, we propose building a marketing and follow-up system that helps your business reach prospective clients, earn their trust, and convert interest into life insurance consultations.

Our agency will manage the marketing process - from messaging and campaigns to appointment booking and performance reporting - so you can focus on advising clients and growing your business.

The first 90 days will establish the foundation, test which activities generate qualified opportunities, and identify where further investment makes business sense.

The opportunity

Life insurance can be difficult for prospective customers to understand. Clear explanations and a straightforward way to speak with an adviser can help people take the next step.

U.S. research from LIMRA and Life Happens identifies misunderstandings about cost and coverage as barriers to purchasing life insurance. This supports testing an educational approach, although your local audience will need to be assessed separately. [1]

We will begin by reviewing your current marketing, customer base, inquiry volume, and sales process to establish which opportunities apply to your business.

Who we will help you reach

We recommend starting with one primary audience selected around your experience, products, and service area: young families, new homeowners, self-employed professionals, or business owners with protection needs.

Focusing the initial campaign will make the message more relevant and the results easier to evaluate.

Planning basis: this proposal assumes Sharon operates a life insurance agency. Business details, budget, and local requirements will be confirmed during discovery.

What we will deliver

Service	Proposed work	Business benefit
Positioning and messaging	Define the audience, customer concerns, and your value proposition.	Give prospective clients a clear reason to contact you.
Online conversion	Build or improve one campaign landing page with consultation booking.	Make it easier for interested people to take action.
Educational content	Create accessible posts and short videos answering common questions.	Build familiarity and confidence in your business.
Lead generation	Test one paid advertising channel suited to the audience and budget.	Generate measurable inquiries.
Follow-up and booking	Set up inquiry tracking, acknowledgments, reminders, and agreed follow-up messages.	Reduce missed inquiries and appointments.
Performance reporting	Track inquiries through appointments, applications, and policies placed in force.	Show which activities contribute to growth.

The customer journey

Content or advertisement > Focused landing page > Consultation request > Confirmation and reminder > Meeting with Sharon > Appropriate next steps

We will track progress through this journey to identify where people lose interest and improve the process.

Example invitation: "Book a no-obligation life insurance conversation with Sharon to discuss your needs and understand your options."

Final wording will reflect your actual services and approval requirements. You will review insurance-related content before publication. Product recommendations, advice, quotations, and applications remain with you and your licensed team.

The 90-day delivery plan

Phase	Our work	Milestone
Days 1-30 Build the foundation	Review existing performance; choose the audience; develop messaging; prepare the landing page, content, tracking, and follow-up process.	Campaign ready to launch, with baseline measures recorded.
Days 31-60 Launch and learn	Launch one campaign; publish educational content; monitor inquiry quality; review booking and attendance.	Initial evidence of which messages generate useful conversations.
Days 61-90 Improve and evaluate	Refine targeting and messaging; address follow-up gaps; assess sales outcomes and acquisition costs.	A documented recommendation to expand, adjust, or stop each activity.

Insurance applications may take longer than the pilot to reach a final outcome. We will distinguish pending applications from policies actually placed in force when evaluating results.

Proposed pilot scope

- One discovery session and growth strategy.
- One primary audience and campaign offer.
- One landing page with a booking or inquiry form.
- Management of one paid advertising channel.
- Eight social posts and two short video edits per month, using footage supplied by Sharon.
- One inquiry tracking and follow-up workflow.
- A weekly performance update and monthly strategy meeting.
- A final 90-day review and recommended next steps.

Additional channels, a full website rebuild, and on-site video production can be priced separately.

People & performance

How our team will work

The following division of responsibilities is proposed and can be adjusted to match our strengths.

Team member	Responsibility
[Your Name]	Client relationship, growth strategy, partnerships, and delivery oversight.
Raphael	Campaign management, audience testing, and performance analysis.
Miguel	Content production, landing page, booking tools, and follow-up setup.
Sharon	Business and product input, content approval, consultations, and sales outcome updates.

We will maintain a shared delivery schedule and hold a weekly internal review to keep the work coordinated.

How we will measure success

Our primary measure will be whether marketing generates suitable opportunities at a cost your business can sustain. We will track:

- Qualified inquiries and cost per qualified inquiry.
- Consultations booked and attended.
- Applications submitted and policies placed in force.
- Total acquisition cost per new client.
- Commission received, allowing for servicing costs and potential commission reversals.

A qualified inquiry means a person within your service area who has expressed a relevant need and agreed to be contacted. It does not imply eligibility for coverage.

Before launch, we will agree on targets using your actual business figures. Followers, views, and raw lead counts alone will not be treated as proof of revenue growth.

Investment & next steps

Proposed investment structure

Cost	What it covers
One-time setup fee [Amount]	Strategy, landing page, tracking, and initial campaign setup.
Monthly agency fee [Amount]	Campaign management, agreed content, optimization, and reporting.
Advertising budget [Amount]	Advertising spend paid directly by Sharon.
Approved software costs [Amount]	Any required booking, tracking, or messaging tools.

Final pricing will follow the initial review and agreed scope. You will own your business accounts and customer data, with our agency receiving the access needed to deliver the work.

Our decision on future growth

At the end of the pilot, we will recommend increasing investment only where inquiry quality, sales outcomes, service capacity, and acquisition costs support it.

Total acquisition cost will include advertising, agency fees, and campaign tools. We will compare that cost with the income you actually retain from new business before recommending expansion.

What we need to begin

We will need your service area, product focus, current marketing materials, available consultation capacity, approximate sales performance, and agreed budget. We will also confirm applicable advertising, privacy, and contact-consent requirements before launching.

The proposed partnership

Our role is to give you a consistent, measurable way to attract and follow up with prospective clients. You bring the insurance expertise and client relationships; we bring marketing execution and reporting.

We propose beginning with the 90-day pilot, reviewing the evidence together, and building a longer-term growth partnership around what works.

[1] LIMRA and Life Happens, 2025 Insurance Barometer research, June 25, 2025. U.S. findings; not a forecast for Sharon's business. Read the source.